Dear Prem Das:

Please convey to doña Guadalupe my very profound sadness. Ramon was a beautiful being. I can't say anything. What one holds in the heart is what counts in the final analysis.

Tell doña Guadalupe that I turned the Huichol Suit over to Barbara Myerhoff the same day that Ramon and Guadalupe left Los Angeles. The suit had so much power that I could not keep it in my house. The person who was going to buy it had left for the Orient (I didn't know that when I asked Ramon to leave the suit with me). It was not possible for me to have it around. Barbara said that she had ways of selling it and that she was going to send money to Ramon anyway; so, according to her, there was no problem in disposing of the suit and paying them for it.

Tell doña Guadalupe that I would do anything to help her if she tells me what she needs.

Sincerely,

Carlos Castaneda
